

Kanya Vikas Awas Yojana: Building Dreams, Creating Homes

Lion Sena Trust presents an ambitious initiative to ensure every Indian girl has her own home - a fundamental right that combines social welfare with innovative community participation. This comprehensive programme addresses the critical need for women's housing security while creating economic opportunities for participants across India.

The Social Mission: Why Every Girl Deserves Her Own Home

Understanding the Challenge

In Indian society, when a girl is born, she often faces discrimination from the very beginning. Despite constitutional guarantees, the harsh reality is that many girls grow up without a place they can truly call their own. When she marries, she leaves her parental home for her in-laws' house. However, if circumstances change - whether through divorce, widowhood, or family disputes - she often finds herself unwelcome in both her parental home (maayaka) and her in-laws' home (sasural).

Although the law grants her property rights, the practical reality of claiming these rights involves lengthy legal battles, social stigma, and emotional trauma. This leaves countless women vulnerable and homeless, despite having theoretical legal protections.

Our Solution

Lion Sena Trust, under the guidance of Dr. Veerpal (awarded by Hawkins University, Texas, USA), has developed the Kanya Awas Vikas Yojana to provide permanent housing security to Indian girls and women. This initiative ensures that every participant receives a fully constructed 50-gaj (approximately 450 square feet) house in Khatu Shyam, Rajasthan, with complete legal ownership rights.

Government Recognition: The National Commission for Protection of Child Rights (NCPCR) has acknowledged this initiative, noting its importance for formulating guidelines and recommendations for women's housing security.

Official Recognition and Legal Framework

NCPCR Acknowledgment

The National Commission for Protection of Child Rights has formally acknowledged this initiative through letter F.No.: DL-EB87077/2025-26/NCPCR/JJ dated 6th October 2025, recognizing the importance of ensuring permanent housing security for Indian girls.

Trust Registration

The Trust has approached key government bodies including the Planning Commission and NITI Aayog for cooperation and support to expedite implementation of this important initiative. The project aims to provide not just shelter, but permanent security and full property rights to women who are often alienated from both their families and in-laws.

Lucky Draw Mechanism

Winners are selected through a transparent lucky draw system conducted every month after the initial 24-month period. All participants who complete their payment instalments become eligible for the monthly draws where fully constructed homes are awarded.
